JAPAN TIRED OF LOSSES

"Indeterminate Policy of Allies" in Siberia Fatal.
(London Times Phil. Ledger Cop. Cable.)
Tokio, March 11.—(Delayed.)—The succession of reports of minor military conflicts in Siberia, which came to a climax today when one of our battalion's regiments, suffered 200 casualties, including Maj. Tanaka, are an unpleasant reminder to the public that the war is not over; also a serious reflection on the allies' military policy. Delayed accounts of recent fighting on the Amur agree that the Japanese were outnumbered by the bolshevists 15 to 1. The Japanese death roll was 120. It was evidently a Homeric contest, one calculated to fill the people with justifiable pride. So far the Kokuminis is the only journal to comment on the fight, saying briefly that the sacrifices of Japan in Siberia must not be made in vain.

The fight referred to by the Tokio correspondent occurred towards the end of February in the Blagoviest-chensk district. Here local bolshevist uprisings had occurred. A Japanese London Times Reviews Field Marshal's Failures and Successes.

London, March 21.—(London Times-Phil. Ledger Cop. Cable.)—In connection with Field Marshal Haig's transfer from command of the British army on the continent to command of the home forces, the Times prints an appreciative article recognizing both his failures and successes.

ciative article recognising both mis-ures and successes.

"Field Marshal Hsig," says the ar-ticle, "probably fought more battles than any British general who has ever lived. And their magnitude dwarfs everything in our military history. Waterloo would have been a mere com-bat if it had figured in the catalogue of his ergagements, and his battles were, on the whole, singularly success-ful.

were, on the whole, singularly successful.

"His best things were done at the beginning and end of the war. The conduct of the retreat from Mons was above praise, and it should never be forgotten that his was the distinction of that greatest and narrowest of British victories, the first battle of Ypres. In the last few months of the war, he was as infallible as Wellington himself, and when their history comes to be properly written we shall hall this period as incomparably the most glorious of our military history.

"Haig must share the glory with others, but when all deductions have been made enough will remain to put him amongst the first half-dozen generals this country has ever produced. Mistakes he may have made, for battles like Loos were premature, as we now see in view of the amazing strength of the German positions, and Paschendaele must always be accounted one of the most tragic passages in our history."
